

The next time you visit Hops & Barleys, be sure to check out Alice Savage's elbow print at the corner of the bar. The building was once home to Savage's Bar, and Alice was known to sit in her favorite spot every night. Over the years, an actual elbow print made its way into the bar where Alice would sit night after night looking over her domain. Rumor has it that she really hasn't left the building.